

On this day in 1900, the first Zeppelin flew. This ship, named after Ferdinand von Zeppelin, was initially used as an experiment for regular airship travel. While in existence, the ship flew more than 1 million miles with a perfect passenger safety record. Would you like to travel in an airship like this? Why or why not?